UNIT-I- INTRODUCTION

DEFINITIONS:

Marketing is a social and managerial process by which individuals and groups obtain what they need and want through creating, offering and exchanging products of value with others.

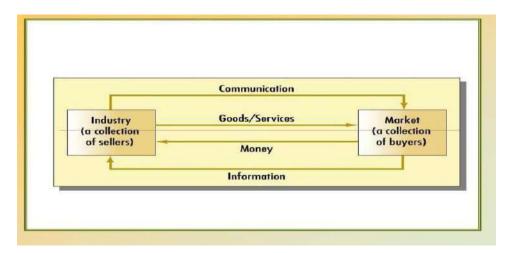

"Marketing is the economic process by which goods and services are exchanged between the maker and the user, and their values determined in terms of money prices."

"Marketing is a total system of interacting business activities designed to plan, promote and distributes need-satisfying products and services to existing and potential customers."

"Marketing is a viewpoint, which looks at the entire business process as a highly integrated effort to discover, create, arouse and satisfy consumer needs."

"Marketing is the delivery of a standard of living to society."

American Marketing Association [AMA] defined as "the activity, set of institutions, and processes for creating, communicating, delivering, and exchanging offerings that have value for customers, clients, partners, and society at large."

To explain marketing definition, we examine the following important terms:

- Needs, wants, and demands
- Products and services
- I Value, satisfaction and quality
- Exchange, transactions, and relationships
- Markets

Products and Services:

✓ Product:

- Anything that can be offered to a market to satisfy a need or want.
- The concept of product is not limited to physical objects anything capable of satisfying a need

> Services:

• In addition to tangible goods, products also include services, which are activities or benefits offered for sale that are essentially intangible and do not result in the ownership of anything.

Core Concepts f Marketing: (https://www.voutube.com/watch?v=LV3LrVxc0vk)

Needs, wants, and demands; products (goods, services and ideas); value, cost and satisfaction: exchange and transaction: relationships and networks: markets: and marketers and prospects.

a) Needs: தേவை

Describe basic human requirements such as food, air, water, clothing, and shelter.

b) Wants: ேவ ண ட்Oம

Needs become wants when they are directed to specific objects that might satisfy the need.

c) Demand: គណៈព្រ គ គេល

Are wants for specific products backed by an ability to pay.

d) Product:

Is any offering that can satisfy a need or want, such as one of the 10 basic offerings of goods, services, experiences, events, persons, places, properties, organizations, information, and ideas.

e) Value:

As a ratio between what the customer gets and what he gives. The customer gets benefits and assumes costs, as shown in this equation:

F) Exchange:

- Exchanges are carried out by business firms, and also by no business organizations and even individuals.
- Four conditions must exist for an exchange to be able to occur:
 - Two or more people or organizations must be involved.
 - The parties must be involved voluntarily.
 - Each party must have something of value to exchange, and the parties must believe they will each benefit from the exchange.
 - The parties must be able to communicate with each other.

Marketing Channels:

To reach a target market, the marketer uses three kinds of marketing channels. Communication channels deliver messages to and receive messages from target buyers. They include newspapers, magazines, radio, television, mail, telephone, billboards, posters, fliers, CDs, audiotapes, and the Internet.

Beyond these, communications are conveyed by facial expressions and clothing, the look of retail stores, and many other media. Marketers are increasingly adding dialogue channels (e-mail and toll-free numbers) to counter balance the more normal monologue channels (such as ads by as bestows)

The marketer uses distribution channels to display or deliver the physical product or service(s) to the buyer or user. There are physical distribution channels and service distribution channels, which includewarehouses, transportation vehicles, and various trade channels such as distributors, wholesalers, and retailers. The marketer also uses selling channels to effect transactions with potential buyers.

✓ Purchasing

Purchasing Management refers to "the process of efficient, effective and economical purchasing of materials to be utilized by the organization in relation to its manufacturing activities"

Purchase Management:

Focus on obtaining materials and components in right quantities and qualities at cheap cost.

Purchasers towards Marketers:

Marketers request purchasing small quantities of many items rather than large quantities of few items.

Purchasing Vs. Marketers for success:

- i. Purchasing management handle all data's relating to contact with suppliers.
- ii. They required knowledge of supply chain, business and tax laws, invoice and inventory procedures and transportation and logistics issues.

Production/Manufacturing

Manufacturing:

Responsible for producing right products in right quantities at right time for right cost.

Manufacturers towards Marketers:

- Little understanding of factory economics or politics.
- See only problems of their customers.

Manufacturing Vs. Marketing:

- i. Production planning influence the performance of production.
- ii. Marketing influenced by scheduling the production plan.
- iii. When plan and scheduling is problematic, production and marketing need to cooperate to resolve problems and need to adjust continually.

✓ Operations

Used for creating and providing services.

(Example: In a hotel,)

- Operation Department: includes front-desk people, doormen, waiters and waitress.
- Marketers promise the customers about service levels
- Operation staffs focus their convenience give ordinary service, whereas marketers want to focus on customer convenience and provide extraordinary services.

Operations Vs. Marketers

- Operations concern with production of goods and services with little resource and effective meeting of customer requirements.
- i.e., managing the process of converting the input into output

✓ Finance

Finance Executives:

Focuses on evaluating profit on different business actions

Website:www.miet.edu, E-mail:principalengg@miet.edu, contact@miet.edu

Finance executives towards marketers:

- Marketing people do not spend time relating expenditures to results
- They are not able to prove how much revenue these expenditures will produce
- They are too quick to sales prices to win orders instead price to make profit
- They "know they value of everything and the cost of nothing"

Marketing Executives:

- Focus on asking budgets for advertising, sales promotions and sales force
- Marketers towards Financial Executives:
- controlling the purse strings tightly and refusing to invest in long term market development
- They "know the cost of everything and the value of nothing".

■ Finance Vs. marketing – Company's success

- The financial management should avoid the mistake of looking marketing expenses only from the point of view of cost control.
- Working capital management should be taken into consideration not only by the financial managers but also by the marketing executives.

✓ Accounting:

Prepare the sales report and gives effective marketing information system.

Accountants towards Marketers:

- Lack in providing sales reports on time
- They enter into the special deals of sales with customers and require special accounting procedures.

Marketers:

• Requires to prepare special reports on sales and profitability by segments, important customers, individual products, channels, territories, order size etc.

Marketers towards Accountants:

They allocate fixed-cost burdens to different product in the line.

✓ Human Resource Management:

An integrative general management that involves identifying organization's demands for human resources with particular skills and abilities.

HR towards Marketers:

• Once new product/services introduced marketing has responsibility to inform HR dept. punctually and sufficiently.

Marketers:

• The characteristics of Human resources (skill, quality, moral, commitment, attitude etc) could contribute the strength and weakness of a marketing organization.

HR Management vs. Marketing Management

The involvement, initiative etc., of people at different levels may vary from organization to organization, and it is essentially required to manage personnel issues by the Human Resource Management in order to meet and exceed the marketing objectives.

Key Drivers of Marketing Strategies:

Market leader Strategies:

The leader firm might become weaker or old-fashioned against new entrants as well as existing rival firms. The leader firm can use one or a combination of three strategies:

- 1. Expand the total market strategy: The market-leader firms can gain the maximum when the total market expands. The focus of expanding the total market depends on where the product is in the maturity stage.
- 2. Defending market share strategy: When the leader firm tries to expand the total market size, it must also continuously defend its current business against enemy attacks.
- (a) Position defence: This Strategy involves pouring maximum firm's resources into its current successful brands. To overcome a position defence an attacker therefore, typically adopts an indirect approach rather than the head-on attack that the defender expects.
- (b) Flanking defence: This strategy both guards the market positions of leading brands and develops some flank market niches to serve as a defensive corner either to protect a weak front or to establish an invasion base for counterattack, if necessary.
- (c) Pre-emptive defence: This defence strategy involves the launching of an offence against an enemy before it starts an offence. For ex: TITAN launched more brands and sub-brands called Insignia Collection.
- (d) Counter-offensive defence: This a strategy of identifying a weakness in an attacker and aggressively going after that market niche so as to cause the competitor to pull back its efforts to defend its own territory. When a leader is attacked ,he may base his counter-attack in the attacker's territory. The attacker has to deploy resources to this territory for defence.
- (e) Mobile defence: This strategy involves the leader's broadening and expanding its territories into new market areas by diversifying. The leader takes innovation into new market areas by diversifying
- . The leader takes innovation works in both these directions. E.g.: A five-star hotel can become foreign exchange dealer. Diversification into related areas is used in mobile defence.
- (f) Contraction defence: This strategy involves retrenching into areas of strength and is often used in later stages of a product life cycle or when the firm has been under considerable attack .For ex: HUL decided to concentrate on its core business areas, i.e. soaps and detergents and etc.
- 3. Expanding the market share strategy: Market leaders can improve their profitability through increasing their market shares. Market leaders are successful at expanding their market shares.

✓ Market Challenger Strategies

Those firms which occupy second or third places in the market can be called as Runner up or Market Challenger. The market challengers' strategic objective is to gain market share and to become the leader eventually

How?

- By attacking the market leader
- By attacking other firms of the same size
- By attacking smaller firms

Types of Attack Strategies:

Frontal attack:

Frontal attack involves a head on attack on the competitor by matching the competitor in all aspects – product, price, place promotion.

There are different types of frontal attack,

- Pure frontal attack: It involves matching the competitors in all aspects of marketing.
- Limited frontal attack: It involves attacking in specific customer segments.
- Price based frontal attack: Every product attribute is matched by the competitor.

I Flank attack:

The Flank attack is the marketing strategy adopted by the challenger firm and is intended to attack the weak points or blind spots of the competitor, especially a leader.

Encirclement attack:

The Encirclement Attack is a war strategy adopted by the challenger firm intended to attack the competitor on all the major fronts. Under this strategy, the challenging firms consider both the strengths and weaknesses of the opponent and then launch the attack simultaneously.

Bypass attack:

The Bypass Attack is the most indirect marketing strategy adopted by the challenging firm with a view to surpassing/ betters the competitor by attacking its easier markets. The purpose of this strategy is to broaden the firm's resources by capturing the market share of the competing firm.

✓ Market-Followers strategy:

Market follower is the one who follows a leader or a challenger.

The strategies are- e.g. Product innovation-- Sony,

Product imitation -- Panasonic.

- Following Closely - Follower appears to be challenger in many respects, but doesn't muster/ collect too great an effort so as to block direct conflict.
- Following at a distance - Follower parallels the leader's general price levels, product innovations and distribution at a distance without thread to challenger.
- Following selectively - Follower follows the leader quite closely in some ways, goes its own way in other instances, and sometimes chooses not to participate at all.

✓ Nichers Strategy:

A market niche strategy coincides/ matches with a concentrated marketing strategy. Firm realizes that it lacks the resources to compete directly with bigger firms in the industry and Seeks to identify a particular niche or segment of the market upon which it can concentrate all its energies.

The nicher can play a role of specialist in the following ways:

- Channel specialist large size distribution network
- Service specialist one or more services not available from other companies
- Product feature specialist- certain type of product or product features
- Product line specialist only one product
- Geographic specialist certain locality, region or area
- Specific Customer specialist one or few major customers
- Customer size specialist -(Small or medium or large-size

American Marketing Association "Consumer Goods are destined for use by ultimate consumers or households and in such form that they can be used without commercial processing"

✓ Classification of Consumer Products

- Durable Goods
- Non-durable
- Services

✓ Goods can also be classified as

- Convenience goods
- Shopping Goods
- Specialty Goods

1. Convenience goods

Goods which are easily available to consumer, without any extra effort are convenience goods. Mostly, convenience goods come in the category of nondurable goods such as like fast foods, confectionaries, and tobacco products, with low value. The goods are mostly sold by wholesalers/retailers to make them available to the consumers in good volume.

Features

- Buyers make their purchase as a routine matter
- Low unit price
- Greater frequency of purchase
- Brand preference is subject to change during non-availability of a particular brand.

a) Staple Convenience Consumer Goods:

Goods which come under the basic demands of human beings are called staple convenience goods. For eg: milk, bread, sugar etc.

b) Impulse Convenience Consumer Goods:

Goods which are brought without any prior planning or which are brought impulsively are called impulse convenience goods. For eg: potato wafers, candies, ice creams, cold drinks etc.

2. Shopping Goods:

In shopping consumer goods, consumer do lot of selection and comparison based on various parameters such as cost, brand, style, comfort etc, before buying an item. They are costlier than convenience goods and are durable nature. Consumer goods companies usually try to set up their shops and show rooms in active shopping area to attract customer attention and their main focus is to do lots of advertising and marketing to become popular. Goods like Clothing Items, Televisions, Radio, Foot Wears, Home Furnishing, Jewelleries.

Features

- A full search of the product is made before it is bought
- They are non-routine products and the frequency of purchase is low
- Brand comparisons, inter-store comparisons are made

3. Specialty Goods (Insistence):

- Goods which are very unique, unusual, and luxurious in nature are called specialty goods. Specialty goods are mostly purchased by upper-class of society as they are expensive in nature.
- The goods don't come under the category of necessity rather they are purchased on the basis personal preference or desire.
- Brand name and unique and special features of an item are major attributes which attract customer attraction in buying them.

Examples of Specialty Products are: Antiques, jewelry, wedding dresses, cars.

Marketing Mix of Consumer Products:

Porter Five Forces Analysis

Porter's Five Forces is a framework for industry analysis and business strategy development formed by Michael E. Porter of Harvard Business School in 1979. It draws upon Industrial Organization (IO) economics to derive five forces that determine the competitive intensity and therefore attractiveness of a market. Attractiveness in this context refers to the overall industry profitability. An "unattractive" industry is one in which the combination of these five forces acts to drive down overall profitability. A very unattractive industry would be one approaching "pure competition", in which available profits for all firms are driven down to zero

- 1. The threat of the entry of new competitors
- 2. The threat of substitute products or services
- 3. The bargaining power of customers (buyers)
- 4. The bargaining power of suppliers
- 5. The intensity of competitive rivalry

Product planning and development – Product life cycle – New product Development and Management – Market Segmentation – Targeting and Positioning – Channel Management – Advertising and sales promotions – Pricing Objectives, Policies and methods.

Introduction to Product Management:

Product management is an organizational life cycle function within a company dealing with the planning or forecasting or marketing of a product or products at all stages of the product lifecycle.

Product management (inbound focused) and product marketing (outbound focused) are different yet complementary/ balancing efforts with the objective of maximizing sales revenues, market share, and profit margins

Product Planning:

According to W.J. Stanton, "Product planning embraces/ hold all activities which enable producers and middlemen to determine what should constitute a company's line of products".

According to Johnson, "Product planning determines the characteristics of product best meeting the consumer's numerous desires, characteristics that add stability to products and incorporates these characteristics into the finished product".

Elements of Product Planning:

- Research before production
- Possibility of production method
- Modification in existing lines
- Elimination of the product
- Improvement in the product

Features of Product:

- 1. Tangibility.
- 2. Intangible attributes/ (characteristic or quality)
- 3. Associated attributes.
- 4. Exchange value.
- 5. Consumer satisfaction.

- Products are comprised of 5 levels. Each level adds more customer value. Here are the product levels using a hotel as an example.
- Core benefit: service or benefit the customer is really buying.
- Basic product: marketers turn core benefit into a basic product at this level.
- Expected product: attributes and conditions buyers expect when they purchase this product. Competition takes place at this level in developing countries.
- Augmented product: : attributes and conditions exceed customer expectations. Competition takes place at this level in developed countries..
- Potential product: various augmentations that could be incorporated in the future. Here is where companies search for new ways to satisfy customers and distinguish their offering.

Brand:

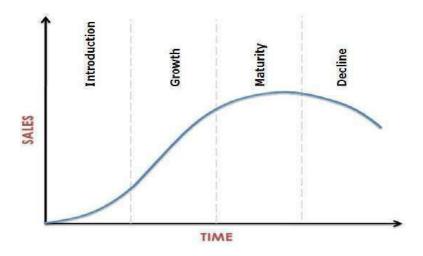

- ✓ Brand is a name, term, sign, symbol or design or a combination of them intended to identify the goods or services of one seller or group of sellers and to differentiate from those of competitors. In essence the brand identifies the seller or maker.
- ✓ Trademark or distinctive name identifying a product or manufacture
- ✓ The brand must be a bridge between the customer and owner of the brand

Levels Attributes:

- Benefits
- Producer's values
- Culture
- Personality
- User

Product Life Cycle:

- ✓ Product life cycle is a business analysis that attempts to identify a set of common stages in the life of commercial products.
- ✓ In other words the 'Product Life cycle' PLC is used to map the lifespan of the product such as the stages through which a product goes during its lifespan

i. Introduction Stage:

During the market introductory stage, there may not be ready market for the product. Sales are low; the product undergoes teething troubles, profits seem a demand has to be created and developed; customers have to be prompted to try out the product. This stage poses several problems for the marketer. The complexity of the problems and the duration of the stage depend upon the nature of the product, its price, its technological newness and the consumer's view of the product.

The management can pursue one of the four strategies

- 1. Rapid skimming,
- 2. Rapid Penetration,
- 3. Slow penetration,
- 4. Slow Skimming.

Characteristics

- Low sales volume
- High costs
- No or little direct competition
- Basic product configuration

Strategies

- Develop primary demand by building awareness and educating consumers Stimulate opinion leaders to buy the product
- Build channels of distribution (selective in the beginning)

Two pricing strategies:

- i. Price Skimming introduce at high price and later reduce and
- ii. Price Penetration introduce at low price and later increase.

ii. Growth Stage

During this stage, the demand for the product increase and the size of the market grows. There is a rapid increase in sales. Early adopters like the product and additional consumers start buying it. Now competitors enter attacked by the opportunities. They introduce new product features and expand distribution.

Price remain where they are or fall slightly depending on how fast demand increase. Profits increase during this stage as promotion cost are spread over a large volume and unit manufacturing costs fall faster than price decline owing to the producer learning effect.

Characteristics

- Sales volume increases significantly
- Costs per unit decrease
- Competition increases
- More product variation

Strategies

Differentiation move toward

- Engage in product modification
- Build selective demand; stress intensive distribution
- Practice more aggressive pricing

iii. Maturity Stage:

In the maturity stage the demand for the product reach a saturation point Price competition become intense and pioneer tries to distinguish his brand by subtle company. Maturity divides into 3 phases:

- Growth Phase
- Stable Phase
- Decaying Maturity

Characteristics

Sales growth slows then levels off

Profits decline for the industry

Marginal competitors leave marketplace

Strategies

- Rejuvenate product change packaging, new models, line extensions
- Stimulate usage rate
- Maintain brand loyalty through reminder promotions
- Continue aggressive pricing
- Continue intensive distribution

✓ Decline Stage :

In this stage, sales begin to fall. The demand for the product shrinks probably due to new and functionally advanced products becoming available in the market/ market being more saturated to the product. In any case, price and margins get depressed: total sales and profits diminish.

Firms do perceive the impounding total decline and prepare for the gradual phasing out of the product. Successful firms quite often keep new products ready in the queue to fill the vacuum created by the decline of existing products

Characteristics

- Strong downward shift in sales
- Profits stay low and continue to decline

- Only a few strong competitors remain
- Back to basic product configurations

Strategies

- Distribution reduced to fewer outlets
- Promotional support reduced Prices lowered

Stages	Main strategy	Price	Advertising and sales promotions
Introduction	Aim to get the innovators try the product	Try to have a higher price to cover the launch costs	Generate awareness; Samples, test drives etc.
Growth	Aim at the weaker market	Keep price up to take advantage of market growth	Reinforce success; Reduced sales promotions
Maturity	Fight off the increasing competition and support loyal customers	Avoid price wars	Stress the differential advantages; use sales promotions to attract users to the brand

New Product Development and Management:

New product development (NPD) is the term used to describe the complete process of bringing a new product or service to market.

There are two parallel paths involved in the NPD process: one involves the idea generation, product design and detail engineering; the other involves market research and marketing analysis. Companies typically see new product development as the first stage in generating and commercializing new products within the overall strategic process of product life cycle management used to maintain or grow their market share.

✓ The process/ Steps in NPD:

Stage 1 - Idea Generation;

(Approved by AICTE, New Delhi, Affiliated to Anna University, Chennal)
UG - CSE, EEE & MECH Programs Accredited by NBA, New Delhi
Accredited with 'A+' grade by NAAC
An ISO 9001:2015 Certified institution
Recognized by UGC under section 2(f) & 12(B) of UGC Act, 1956

Website:www.miet.edu, E-mail:principalengg@miet.edu, contact@miet.edu

- Ideas for new products can be obtained from basic research using a SWOT analysis (Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities & Threats), Market and consumer trends, company's R&D department, competitors, focus groups, employees, salespeople, corporate spies, trade shows
- Lots of ideas are being generated about the new product. Out of these ideas many ideas are being implemented
- Idea Generation or Brainstorming of new product, service, or store concepts

Stage 2 - Idea Screening;

- This process involves shifting through the ideas generated above and selecting ones which are feasible and workable to develop
- Pursing non feasible ideas can clearly be costly for the company

The screeners should ask several questions,

- ❖ Will the customer in the target market benefit from the product?
- ❖ What is the size and growth forecasts of the market segment/target market
- ❖ What is the current or expected competitive pressure for the product idea?
- ❖ What are the industry sales and market trends the product idea is based on?
- ! Is it technically feasible to manufacture the product?
- Will the product be profitable when manufactured and delivered to the customer at the target price?

Stage 3 - Concept Development and Testing;

- Investigate intellectual property issues and search patent data bases
- Who is the target market and who is the decision maker in the purchasing process?
- What product features must the product incorporate?
- What benefits will the product provide?
- How will consumers react to the product?
- How will the product be produced most cost effectively?
- Prove feasibility through virtual computer aided rendering, and rapid prototyping
- What will it cost to produce it?

Stage 4 - Business Analysis;

- Estimate likely selling price based upon competition and customer feedback
- Estimate profitability and break-even point.

Stage 5. Marketing Strategy;

A proposed marketing strategy will be written laying out the marketing mix strategy of the product, the segmentation, targeting and positioning strategy sales and profits that are expected.

UG - CSE, EEE & MECH Programs Accredited by NBA, New Delhi Accredited with 'A' grade by NAAC An ISO 9001:2015 Certified institution Recognized by UGC under section 2(f) & 12(B) of UGC Act, 1958 Trichy – Pudukkotsai Road, Tiruchirappalli – 820 007, Phone: 0431-2860, 303

Stage 6: Product Development;

Finally it is at this stage that a prototype is finally produced. The prototype will clearly run through all the desired tests, and be presented to the target audience to see if changes need to be made.

Stage 7: Test Marketing;

Test marketing means testing the product within a specific area. The product will be launched within a particular region so the marketing mix strategy can be monitored and if needed, be modified beforenational launch.

Stage 8: Commercialization;

If the test marketing stage has been successful then the product will go for national launch. There are certain factors that need to be taken into consideration before a product is launched nationally. These are timing, how the product will be launched, where the product will be launched, will there be a national roll out or will it be region by region?

✓ New Product Pricing:

- Impact of new product on the entire product portfolio o Value Analysis (internal & external)
- Competition and alternative competitive technologies o Differing value segments (price, value, and need)
- Product Costs (fixed & variable)
- Forecast of unit volumes, revenue, and profit

> Market Segmentation:

- ✓ Process of dividing a total market into groups, or segments, consisting of people or organizations with relatively similar product needs
- ✓ The purpose is to enable a marketer to design a marketing mix (mm) that more precisely matches the needs of customers in the selected market segments.

✓ Patterns of Market Segmentation:

- Homogeneous preferences
- Diffused preferences
- Clustered preferences

✓ Market-Segmentation Procedure

Marketers use a three-step procedure for identifying market segments:

1. Survey stage. The researcher conducts exploratory interviews and focus groups to gain

UG - CSE, EEE & MECH Programs Accredited by NBA, New Delhi Accredited with 'A+' grade by NAAC An ISO 9001:2015 Certified institution Recognized by UGC under section 2(f) & 12(B) of UGC Act, 1956 Trichy - Pudukhottsi Road, Trincthirappalli - 620 007. insight into customer motivations, attitudes, and behavior. Then the researcher prepares a questionnaire and collects data on attributes and their importance ratings, brand awareness and brand ratings, product-usage patterns, attitudes toward the product category, and respondents' demographics, geographics, psychographics, and media graphics.

- 2. Analysis stage. The researcher applies factor analysis to the data to remove highly correlated variables, then applies cluster analysis to create a specified number of maximally different segments.
- 3. Profiling stage. Each cluster is profiled in terms of its distinguishing attitudes, behavior, demographics, psychographics, and media patterns, then each segment is given a name based on its dominant characteristic. In a study of the leisure market, Andreasen and Belk found six segments:10 passive homebody, active sports enthusiast, inner-directed self-sufficient, culture patron, active homebody, and socially active. They found that performing arts organizations could sell the most tickets by targeting culture patrons as well as socially active people.

- Selective Specialization
- Product Specialization
- Market Specialization
- Full Market Coverage

✓ Objectives of Positioning:

- To create a distinctive place of a product or service in the minds of the potential customers
- To provide competitive edge to a product or service
- Place an intangible service within a more tangible frame of reference
- Help influence both service department and the redesign of existing service
- Follow competitor's moves and responses to take appropriate action
- To give the target market the reason of buying your services
- Guidelines for development of marketing mix

Positioning Process/ Steps

1. Market Positioning:

It is the process of identifying and selecting markets or segments that represent business potential, to determine the criteria for competitive success this must be based on the following factors. Thorough knowledge of needs, wants and perceptions of the target market and benefits offered by the services offered.

2. Psychological Positioning:

This step involves the use of communication to convey the firms or its offerings identity and image to the target market. It converts the needs in to images and positions the offerings in the customer's mind.

a) Objective Positioning:

Here the positioning relates to the objective attributes of the physical product Creation of an image of service offering that reflects physical and functional features. This is concerned with what actually is and what exist in real.

b) Subjective Positioning:

(Approved by AICTE, New Delhi, Affiliated to Anna University, Chennal)
UG - CSE, EEE & MECH Programs Accredited by NBA, New Delhi
Accredited with 'A+' grade by NAAC
An ISO 9001:2016 Certified institution

Website:www.mief.edu, E-mail:principalengg@mief.edu, contact@mief.edu

It relates to the subjective attributes of the service offerings. It is the mental perceptions or image perceived by the customers

Positioning Approaches:

- Positioning by attributes, features or customer benefits
- Positioning by Price value
- Positioning by use of application
- Positioning according to users or class or Users
- Positioning with respect to product class
- Positioning against Competition
- Positioning by endorsement/ support
- Positioning by Quality Dimensions.

Targeting:

Once the firm has identified its market-segment opportunities, it is ready to initiate market targeting. Here, marketers evaluate each segment to determine how many and which ones to target and enter.

Factors in Evaluating Market Segments: ✓

- 1. Segment Size and Growth Analyze sales, growth rates and expected profitability.
- 2. Segment Structural Attractiveness - Consider effects of: Competitors, Availability of Substitute Products and, the Power of Buyers & Suppliers.
- 3. Company Objectives and Resources Company skills & resources relative to the segment(s). Look for Competitive Advantages
- 4. Target Market should be consistent, should meet the goals of the organization
- 5. Markets must be consistent with the resources.

✓ Selecting the Target Market:

The essence of the marketing strategy of a firm for a given product/brand can be grasped/filter from the target market chosen, the way it is positioned and how the marketing mix is organized. The target market shows to whom the unit intends to sell the products, positioning and marketing mix together show how and using what uniqueness or distinction the unit intends to sell.

Types of Marketing Channels:

✓ Channel Management Decisions:

1. Selecting Channel Members;

During the selection process, producers should determine what characteristics distinguish the better intermediaries. They will want to evaluate number of years in business, other lines carried, growth and profit record, solvency, cooperativeness, and reputation. If the intermediaries are sales agents, producers will want to evaluate the number and character of other lines carried and the size and quality of the sales force.

2. Training Channel Members;

Companies need to plan and implement careful training programs for their distributors and dealers because the intermediaries will be viewed as the company by end-users. Microsoft, for example, requires third-party service engineers who work with its software applications to complete a number of courses and take certification exams. Those who pass are formally recognized as Microsoft Certified Professionals, and they can use this designation to promote business.

Website:www.miet.edu, E-mail:principalengg@miet.edu, contact@miet.edu

3. Motivating Channel Members;

The most successful firms view their channel members in the same way they view their end users. This means determining their intermediaries' needs and then tailoring the channel positioning to provide superior value to these intermediaries. To improve intermediaries' performance, the company should provide training, market research, and other capability-building programs and the company must constantly reinforce that its intermediaries are partners in the joint effort to satisfy customers.

4. Evaluating Channel Members;

Producers must periodically evaluate intermediaries' performance against such standards as salesquota attainment, average inventory levels, customer delivery time, treatment of damaged and lost goods, and cooperation in promotional and training programs. A producer will occasionally discover that it is paying too much to particular intermediaries for what they are actually doing.

5. Modifying Channel Arrangements;

Channel arrangements must be reviewed periodically and modified when distribution is not working as planned, consumer buying patterns change, the market expands, new competition arises, innovative distribution channels emerge, or the product moves into later stages in the product life cycle.

Resource mobilization.

✓ Factors Affecting the Pricing Decisions:

1. Internal factors:

(a) Organizational Factors: pricing decisions occur on two levels in the organization. Overall Price strategy is with the top executives. They determine the basic ranges that the product falls into in terms of market segments.

The actual mechanics of pricing are dealt with at lower levels in the firm and focus on individual product strategies.

- (b) Marketing Mix: Marketing experts view prices as only one of the many important elements of the marketing mix. A shift in any one of the elements has an immediate effect on the other three- production, Promotion and distribution.
- (c) Product Differentiation: The price of the product also depends upon the characteristics of the product. In order to attract the customers, differentiation

✓ Pricing Process:

UNIT IV

BUYER BEHAVIOUR:

Understanding industrial and individual buyer behavior:

According to Solomon, "Consumer/ buyer behaviour is the process involved when individuals or groups select, purchase, use, or dispose of products, services, ideas or experiences to satisfy needs and wants."

- ✓ Importance of Consumer Buying Behaviour:
- 1. Production Policies.
- 2. Price Policies.
- 3. Decision Regarding Channels of Distribution.
- 4. Decision Regarding Sales Promotion.
- 5. Exploiting Marketing Opportunities.
- 6. Consumers do not always act or react predictability.
- 7. Consumer preferences are changing and becoming Highly Diversified.
- 8. Rapid Introduction of New Products.
- 9. Implementing the "Marketing Concept".

✓ Nicosia Model:

Nicosia Model of Consumer Behaviour is a dynamic model which explains the decision making process of a consumer while being exposed to the Company's attributes through it formal and subtle communications.

It was one of the first models to divulge as to what constitutes loyalty towards a specific product. The model proposed by Francesco Nicosia in the 1970s, was one of the first models of consumer behavior to explain

Howard Sheth Model:

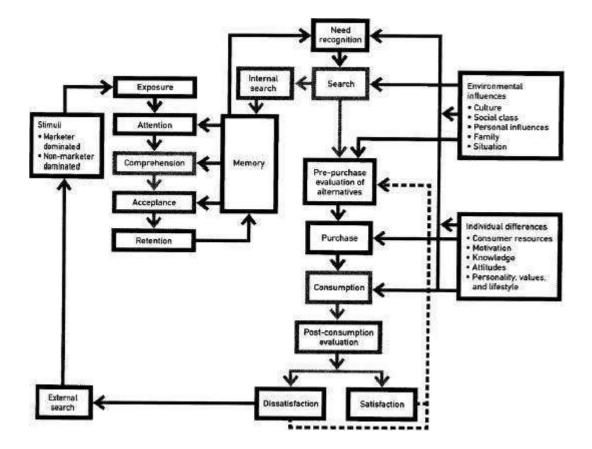

The Howard - Sheth Theory of Buyer Behavior

The Howard Sheth Model of Consumer Behavior is a graphical representation of reality, when a consumer goes out to make a purchase decision, under diverse conditions of extensive problem solving, limited problem solving and as a routine behaviour.

Howard-Sheth model is one of models that represent consumer behaviour on the market. It attempts to explain the rationality of choice of the product by the consumer under conditions of incomplete information and reduced processing capability.

✓ Engel – Kollat Blackwell Model:

The EKB model of consumer behavior was originally designed to save as framework for organizing the fast growing body of knowledge concerning consumer behavior. The Engel-Kollat - Blackwell model is essentially a conscious problem solving and learning model of consumer behavior. It also referred to as the was proposed to organize and describe the growing body of knowledge/research concerning consumer behavior.

Online Buver Behaviour:

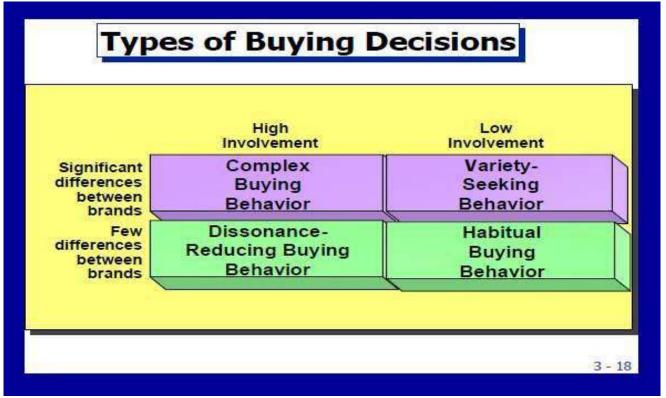

Understanding the mechanisms of virtual shopping and the behavior of the online consumer is a priority issue for practitioners competing in the fast expanding virtual market place.

Several academics and practitioners have identified the "online shopping experience" or "virtual experience" as a crucial. E-commerce marketing issue the online shopping experience as a process of four stages describing the successive steps of an online transaction. Considering that an online customer s not simply a shopper but also an information technology user one can argue that the online experience is a more complicated issue than the physical shopping experience:

CRM Process:

Customer acquisition, Retaining, Defection:

✓ Customer Retention:

The customer retention process actually begins during acquisition, which creates customer expectations, including perceptions of product value and uniqueness. Initial product usage determines whether these expectations are met. Then other factors, such as ease of exit, ease of purchase, and customer service, come into play. Together these factors affect long-term customer behavior and determine the relationship between seller and buyer.

Multiple pricing, or multiple unit pricings, is a pricing scheme that specifies the item price for multiple units. A typical example of multiple pricing is an item that sells at 4 for rs.100. In this example rs.100 is the multiple unit price and 4 is the multiple unit quantity.

Product Life and Captive Product Pricing While often the main item may be a one-time purchase, the captive products required to use the item are generally repeat purchases. A customer might buy a relatively inexpensive razor, for example, but the company set a high price on the replacement razor blades.

 Values represent the collective conception of what people find desirable, important and morally proper.

Framework of analysis for Marketing Ethics:

- 1) Value-oriented Framework: It analyses ethical problems on the basis of the values which they infringe/ disobey (e.g. Honesty, autonomy, privacy, transparency).
- 2) Stakeholder Oriented Framework: It analyses ethical Problems on the basis of whom they affect. (e.g. Consumers, competitors.)
- 3) Process-Oriented Framework: It analyses ethical Problems in terms of the categories used by marketing specialists (e.g. research, price, promotion, and placement.)

Online Advertising Options:

✓ Text Ads

Text ads are one of the most common ad types used in online advertising. Google's AdWords program has made text advertising in easy, accessible, and affordable option for many businesses. One of the greatest advantages is that they can be matched to highly speed line keywords and appear on sites where they are the most likely to reach potential customers.

✓ Banner Ads

Banner ads are large, rectangular advertisements intended to capture the attention of online viewers. These ads often feature images or animations designed to catch the eye and inspire the reader to click the banner. One problem with this type of online advertising is that it has become so prevalent that many users experience what lias been called banner blindness, where commonly viewed ads are ignored and disregarded.

✓ Advertorials

Advertorials are a combination of an editorial and an advertisement. This type of online advertising is common on E-commerce websites, For example, a business selling entertainment media might write an advertorial review of a product and then provide an affiliate link where the customer can purchase the item.

✓ E-mail:

E-mail offers an excellent opportunity to make direct contact with potential customers. However, customers do not want to be inundated with unwanted e-mail. The key to using e-mail as an online advertising tool is to encourage customers to sign up for a mailing list or newsletter. By providing valuable information to potential customers, they will be more receptive to your marketing message.

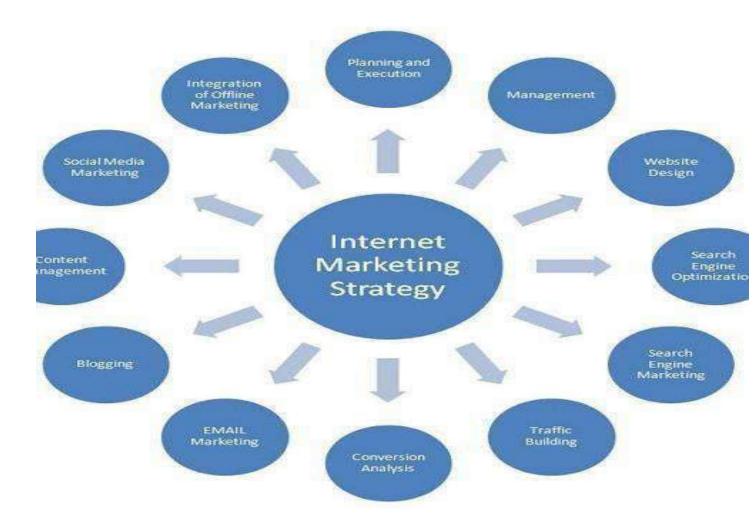

Online Marketing Techniques:

Over the years, different companies have generated a number of tried and tested advertising techniques. These methods increase the profile of your business on the Web, draw potential customers to your website, and increase sales. Use some of these proven and tested marketing methods to rev up the company's online advertising.

✓ Search Engine Marketing (SEM)

Search engine marketing involves advertising your website through search engine, often through search results, paid listings, or pay-per-click campaigns. By using effective search engine optimization (SEO) techniques, businesses can achieve top results in search engine results. Many businesses have found that search marketing dramatically improves site traffic and sales.

✓ Affiliate Programs

Allowing other websites to advertise and promote your product and service is a great way to significantly expand your customer base and increase your online sales. In exchange for marketing your business, affiliates earn a commission on the sales they produce. Affiliate programs are an ideal solution for product-based websites that need to reach out to a targeted audience.

✓ Reciprocal Links

Exchanging links with other websites is another important Internet advertising tool-. When you place a reciprocal link on your website, the other business will place a corresponding link on their side leading back to your Web location. The advantage of reciprocal links is that they are relatively easy way to reach more customers and improve search engine rankings. A potential drawback of this marketing techniques is that it can be time consuming and difficult to determine the effectiveness.

✓ Blogs

Blogs are one of the latest tools used in Internet advertising. While they are often thought of as personal journals, many businesses have discovered ways of successfully using blogs to promote products, services, and other business-related news. Blogs are a great way to add interactivity and liveliness to your website. Syndicating your blog, with an RSS feed is another way to promote your website and rive readers a chance to access all of the latest updates and news about your business.

Ambush Marketing: A marketing technique in which advertisers work to connect their product with a particular event in the minds of potential customers, without having to pay sponsorship expenses for the event. An example of ambush marketing might involve selling music merchandise.

Buzz marketing is a viral marketing technique that is focused on maximizing the word-of-mouth potential of a particular campaign or product, whether that is through conversations among consumers' family and friends or larger scale discussions on social media platforms.

Article marketing is a branch of content marketing. It is a type of advertising in which companies write and distribute short articles to a range of outlets such as article banks, forums, and newsletter publishers. Article marketing is also one of the least costly ways to market a company.

Green marketing refers to the process of selling products and/or services based on their environmental benefits. Such a product or service may be environmentally friendly in itself or produced in an environmentally friendly way.

Sports' marketing is a subdivision of marketing which focuses both on the promotion of sports events and teams as well as the promotion of other products and services through sporting events and sport steams. It is a service in which the element promoted can be a physical product or a brand name.
